

ANN GOLDSTEIN

CAREER EVOLUTION

Joined The New Yorker in the early 1970s, refining editorial skills that later became instrumental in her translation career. Masterfully transitioned from an editor to a prominent literary translator.

FAMOUS TRANSLATIONS

Primo Levi's "The Periodic Table" (1975)

Elena Ferrante's "Neapolitan Novels" (2012-2015):

Primo Levi's "If Not Now, When?" (1982):

Elena Ferrante's "The Lying Life of Adults" (2020):

ACADEMICS

Bennington College: Undergrad studies ignited love for literature and translation.

Johns Hopkins University: Master's in comparative literature deepened language and cultural understanding.

REFERENCES

<https://www.asymptotejournal.com/interview/interview-ann-goldstein/>

<https://www.nationalbook.org/people/ann-goldstein/>

<https://www.nytimes.com/2020/08/21/books/elena-ferrante-lying-life-of-adults-ann-goldstein-translator.html>